The largest wilderness resort on Canada's West Coast is a massive development in a scenic nook on a remote island, reached by helicopter or hour-long boat ride from Campbell River. The extensive property holds a collection of themed lodges, two pools, two-dozen hot tubs (really), and a presidential suite containing the table used at the Clinton/Yeltsin 1993 Vancouver summit. Finely crafted Douglas-fir trim and light stone accent the decor throughout the resort. Guests spend time fishing, kayaking, swimming, playing tennis and watching marine wildlife.
